25X1

1. The troops which remained in the Flak Kaserne on Ettersburgerstrasse wore red-bordered black epaulets. Recruits had recently arrived there. Twelve-man crews trained with three AA guns of about 80 mm caliber in the barracks yard on 1 June 1950. Soldiers practicing with one large and two small range finders were observed on 8 June 1950. Motor vehicles [redacted] [redacted] were seen at the Flak Kaserne. *
2. A new gun emplacement had been prepared on Ettersberg, about 300 meters east of the previous emplacement. The area within a radius of about 800 meters around the emplacements had been placed off limits. Two concrete shelters, apparently crew quarters, and a large shelter, possibly a command post, were located near the emplacement. A tent farther to the rear was connected by an overhead line with the Flak Kaserne. Troops were receiving instruction at the guns, and subsequently cleaned them.
3. Billeting area I of the Tannenberg Kaserne had apparently been reoccupied after the departure of the troops previously quartered there. While many troops were seen, there was no systematic training activity. Motor vehicles [redacted] [redacted] were seen. **
4. A few soldiers with red-bordered black epaulets were again observed in billeting area II of the Tannenberg Kaserne. About 15 officers stood in a group at the barracks yard on 1 June 1950. No regular activity was observed. Motor vehicles [redacted] [redacted] were seen. **
5. Billeting area III of the Tannenberg Kaserne was occupied by German Volkspolizei personnel.
6. The troops which remained in billeting area I of the Luetzendorf Kaserne wore red-bordered black epaulets, some with artillery insignia. There were many young soldiers with closely cropped hair. Two 54-mm guns with crews of 10 to 12 men were seen at artillery drill on 1 June 1950. Motor vehicles [redacted] were seen. *
